David will provide his insights from thirty years advising on financial markets and portfolio construction and answer the question "Should exposure to the share market be reduced or do we have more fire in the belly for ongoing investor returns"

This presentation is a must attend event for all investors wanting to obtain a better understanding of the outlook for both the domestic and global share markets, David will include several core stocks investors may you wish to consider holding for the next couple of years.

David Chia – Relate, Empower, Deliver

- Founder & portfolio manager of boutique firm, RED Asset Management P/L (2007)
- David believes he shares much with English physicist & mathematician, Isaac Newton, in discovering the existence of gravity. His own enlightenment came during the 1987 equity crash, a year after commencing his career in trading financial markets. He has since that time, devoted his life to the pursuit of knowledge in trying to understand, wrestle with and beaten up by equities, bonds & derivatives. With 32 years of trading at many of the larger investment firms around the world, he set up in 2007, an asset management business built around a long-only global unconstrained strategy.
- At 62, he remains as passionate as ever about financial education and speaks regularly in the community. He subscribes to simplicity of process; that less is more; that complex is not always better – both in life as well as in financial markets.
